#MYCPOSTORY

A MOTHER'S STORY: CHRISTIE WICKLINE

I always wanted to be a mom. One of the reasons why I fell in love with my husband was the love we shared for kids.

When we decided to try and expand our family, and it wasn't happening as expected, it was devastating. We dealt with infertility differently, but it made me question who I was. Who was I if I couldn't be a mom? It tested everything.

People would ask when we were going to have a baby, as many around us our age were becoming pregnant. I have learned that God can use tough times in your life to grow you, bring you closer to Him and impact others. Our story does include later being able to have two miracle children and I now know that my identity is in Christ alone.

My sister-in-law would always tell me that "the days are long, but the years are short" with children. I'm finding that to be very true. I find encouragement in community with other moms and through prayer. It's such a privilege to talk to the God of the universe, pray over our own hearts, our children, family and others.
